Dear Logan,

I'm writing to thank you for initiating the Safe Spaces training that was held on campus in March 2010. Your help organizing the events was much appreciated.

The nature of Safe Spaces training involves a risk that some individuals on campus may be uncomfortable with College sponsorship of such events. On this basis, I feel your willingness not just to initiate the project, but to publicly support it by introducing the presenters at the workshops demonstrated courage.

The overall evaluations of the two events indicated they were a great success and participants consistently reported having taken valuable learning from the experience. A great deal of interest has been expressed in running these events in future and I look forward to their becoming a regular feature on the calendar of development opportunities available to our colleagues across the campus.

Most of all, I look forward to the benefits for everyone of the progress our campus community is making in its understanding and appreciation of all aspects of human diversity: that it grows ever more welcoming, inclusive and 'safer'. I believe the Safe Spaces events made an important contribution to this progress.

Sincerely,

Catriona McCarroll
Manager of Training and Succession Planning
